

Numbers Don't Lie

Average user has 130 friends on Facebook.

What is a Facebook Friend? I've already got plenty of real friends — why do I want to find new ones on Facebook?

Jason & Kelli:

Time passes and we lose touch with people. Remember your best friend in elementary school? How about the kid who played shortstop on your Little League team? How did your college roommate from your freshman year do after graduation? What ever happened to so-and-so?

Facebook is a fun and easy way to reconnect with people in your past. And with hundreds of millions of people on Facebook, there's a pretty good chance you'll find them there.

But Facebook is also a way to stay better connected and informed with the people in your life right now. We stay in touch with long distance family members, friends from church, work colleagues, and the parents of our kids' friends.

Kelli:

Jason and I have friends who live across the world from us (literally) and Facebook has helped us stay in contact with them. We share in each other's lives through sharing photos and experiences regardless of the fifteen-hour time zone difference.

Jason & Kelli:

Overall, we've found Facebook to be a great way to wipe the dust off old friendships and to add new depth to current and new friendships without much effort.

Facebook Jargon

Facebook Friends are two Facebook users who have mutually agreed to accept each others "friendship" on Facebook which allows for a certain level of accessibility and convenient communications with one another.

Related Threads:

- ▶ Finding Friends80
- ▶ Handling Friend Requests84
- ▶ Find-A-Friend Suggestions86
- ▶ Creating Friend Lists112
- ▶ Friending Exes or Not?..... 164

